

Jessica Fulton is a thought leader and economic policy consultant with nearly 20 years of experience advocating for policies that build a more inclusive economy. As an independent consultant, her work focuses on identifying and promoting policies that advance economic justice and mobility for Black households in particular.