

Faith Ambrose is a Policy Manager within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' Executive Office of Education (EOE) and a dedicated P-12 education policy advocate. She is driven by her commitment to ensuring equitable access to affordable, high-quality education especially within historically marginalized communities. Before joining the EOE team, Faith served as a second-grade reading teacher in Memphis, TN, honing her expertise in early literacy while tackling crucial issues such as teacher diversity, retention, and recruitment. She has worked on issues of school discipline and the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) with the U.S. Senate HELP Committee, out of school time programming with the city of Washington D.C. and, more recently, played a pivotal role in crafting an eight-year early education strategic plan for the Governor of Arizona including thinking through how the use of public-private partnerships can address educational inequities. Originally hailing from Jacksonville, IL, she holds a bachelor's degree in Political Science from Jackson State University, a Master's in Urban Education from Union University, and a Master in Public Policy from the Harvard Kennedy School of Government.
