

Kirsten Allen is a crisis-tested strategic communications and public affairs strategist with nearly 15 years of experience advising senior leaders and shaping national narratives at the highest levels of government and politics. She most recently served as Deputy Assistant to the President and Communications Director to Vice President Kamala Harris, where she led integrated communications strategy and served as a senior advisor during the 2024 presidential campaign.

Previously, Allen was chief spokesperson for the federal COVID-19 response at the nation's largest civilian agency and served as Communications Director for the U.S. House Select Subcommittee on the Coronavirus Crisis, helping guide communications around one of the most consequential public health and oversight efforts in recent history. Earlier in her career, Allen advised high-profile presidential and gubernatorial campaigns nationwide, helping leaders navigate rapidly evolving political and media environments.

A graduate of Howard University and member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., Allen now leads an executive communications, crisis management, and public affairs consultancy based in Washington, D.C., advising principals across civic, corporate, and cultural sectors.
