

Joshua Doss is a public-opinion researcher and political commentator whose work bridges rigorous empirical analysis with national media discourse. As a pollster, he has designed and led quantitative and qualitative research initiatives for major civic, philanthropic, and political institutions, translating complex voter sentiment into actionable strategy. His data and analysis have been cited in The New York Times, The Washington Post, NBC News, Politico, and Newsweek.

Doss is also a television political commentator featured on CNN, MSNBC (MSNOW), and NewsNation, where he provides real-time analysis on elections, democratic institutions, and shifts in the American electorate. His work reflects a commitment to grounding public debate in evidence, methodological precision, and cultural insight.