

Georgina Sarpong is a dynamic entrepreneur and emerging food expert from Providence, Rhode Island. Her journey began at Johnson & Wales University, where she earned a degree in culinary arts, fueling her passion for food and creativity.

She gained experience as a chef and manager before transitioning to Farm Fresh Rhode Island, leading statewide farmers' markets and food service programs to expand access to healthy food in underserved communities. Georgina later moved into the technology sector, working with organizations like the RISD Museum, Hasbro, and CVS Health, applying her skills in digital strategy, data analytics, and customer growth.

Alongside her husband, Georgina co-owns C&M Renovations, a construction company specializing in residential and commercial remodeling. This venture reflects her commitment to building strong communities through practical solutions that address the construction industry's skills gap.

Now, as the Director of Food Strategy at Commerce RI, she blends her culinary background with her expertise in project management and technology to drive innovation, support local food businesses, and advance equitable food access in Rhode Island.
